Dear UCLA Alumni and Friends,

The UCLA Alumni Travel program ushers in a stimulating, month-long journey to explore Southern Italy and the sea-directed Amalfi Coast. From your convenient base in Sorrento, handcrafted each day for adventure throughout the peninsula of Campania. Travel along the winding Amalfi Coast, including breathtaking vistas around every bend. Weather through the charming coastal homes of Positano and Amalfi, and sample truly local montrachet flavor of a local food tour. Explore northern Italy’s ambiguities with fascinating excursions in the UNESCO World Heritage sites of Pompeii and the Etruscan Necropolises of Volterra.

Joining us on Professor Efrain Kristal, chair of UCLA’s Department of Comparative Literature, where he holds a joint appointment in Spanish, French, German and Italian, and is the philosophy of art. He received his Ph.D. from Stanford University and was a research fellow at the Ateneo Iluminato in Florence, where he studied the Italian renaissance of Nicolas Poussin, a French painter based in Rome whose mentor was a great painter from Naples. Kristal regularly teaches Dante’s Inferno in a multidisciplinary course, has a special interest in Italian art, and is translating a book by the Italian think Bono della. For the academic year 2017-18, Professor Kristal was the UCLA Department of French Literature in a new program to deliver the distinguished UCLA Faculty Research Lectures. This popular program is quickly annual, so please be sure to make your reservations today!

Joining us is Professor Efrain Kristal, chair of UCLA’s Department of Comparative Literature where he teaches in topics of Spanish, French, German, Italian, and in the philosophy of art. He received his Ph.D. from Stanford University and was a research fellow at the Advanced Study Program in Italy where he studied the Italian renaissance. Kristal is a poet based in Rome whose mentor was a great poet from Naples. Kristal regularly teaches Italian literature and translation at the University of Rome and has a special interest in Italian art, and in translating a book by the Italian philosopher Remo Bodei. For his work, Kristal was awarded the UCLA Faculty Research Award in 2015.

As a UCLA Faculty Research Lecture, this program is $695 per person in limited availability. The UCLA Alumni Travel Department is offering a flight insurance worth up to $250,000, along with travel stress-free in the Airlines Industry with AHI FlexAir. The travel insurance covers an additional $250 or $150 per person respectively. The travel insurance is a mandatory purchase during the online reservation process.
