Meet Your Faculty Lecturer

Professor Sara E. Melzer has taught at UCLA for over 30 years. As a professor of French and Francophone Studies, her knowledge of Vietnam comes through a unique lens. Vietnam was under France’s political and cultural spell (and sword!) from 1620-1954. After achieving political independence, this former colony still remains deeply influenced by its cultural affiliation with France. Professor Melzer’s most recent book is about France’s colonial empire, focusing on how the French adopted a unique colonial strategy, using its culture as an instrument of seduction (not to mention, physical force!). She has published four books and around 50 articles, all exploring the role of culture in the politics of France and her colonial empire.
