Walk in the footsteps of Victoria Falls. Feel the power of up-close encounters with lions lazing in the native habitat while on a safari in South Africa’s parks and game reserves. Experience the thrill of seeing the "seven natural wonders of the world" at Victoria Falls. Be mesmerized by the sight of the great cascade called Mosi-oa-Tunya, "the smoke that thunders," as it is described by the local people.

Sheltered by Table Mountain, South Africa’s most majestic natural landmark, Cape Town is considered to have the most diverse range of habitats and ecosystems of any park in the world. The peninsula is a part of the Cape Floral Region, described by a 19th-century German botanist as the "fairest corner of the world." In 1580, English navigator Sir Francis Drake was the first European to record the bay of Table Mountain, which he called "the fairest and most gentle harbor in the world." Today, Cape Town is described in newspaper articles as "the fairest harbor in the world."
