Discovery

AHI Connects: Tanzanian Crafts and Coffee. Meet the artisans of a local workshop that provides disabled people with livelihoods through creating handmade jewelry, textiles and more. Head to a coffee plantation to see how Tanzania's famed crop is grown, harvested and processed.

Tarangire National Park. Tarangire's diverse landscape — grassy plains, flood plains, wetlands and a perennial river — makes the park hospitable to a wide range of animals. You may see some of Africa's largest elephant herds frolicking by the river, lions stretched out under huge baobab trees and zebras out for a graze. From the yellow-collared lovebird, which can fit in your hand, to the martial eagle, Africa's largest bird of prey, some 550 species of birds live here.

Ngorongoro Conservation Area. Travel into the Great Rift Valley and visit a lively farming community near Ngorongoro, where as many as 120 different tribes reside. Stroll through the colorful market and take a tuk-tuk ride there. Then marvel at the world-famous Ngorongoro Crater, noted for its vast animal population. The crater is actually a caldera created when a volcano's cone collapsed more than 2 million years ago. It forms a bowl that spreads 102 square miles with a forested rim that rises 2,000 feet above the caldera's floor. Savor a memorable alfresco lunch on the crater floor. Visit a Maasai village to meet local residents and learn about the Maasai culture. Delve into anthropological history at the Oldupai Gorge, where eminent researcher Mary Leakey discovered a skull that belonged to an early human ancestor who lived 1.75 million years ago. Her find confirmed that human evolution began in Africa.

Serengeti National Park. The staggering diversity of animals in the Serengeti is the primary reason that it's regarded as one of Africa's finest national parks. Sprawling over 5,791 square miles, the Serengeti, derived from the Maasai word meaning "endless plain," is home to the Big Five: lions, rhinos, leopards, elephants and Cape buffaloes. Some 1.5 million wildebeest, 300,000 Thomson's gazelle and 200,000 zebra also live here. As you cross the golden grasslands, keep your eyes open for cheetahs, hyenas, jackals and giraffes.

The Safari Experience. Going on safari is exhilarating! Your professional driver-guide is an expert on the local wildlife and their habitats. Embark on your safari in a four-wheel-drive Land Cruiser with guaranteed window seating for all six passengers. Enjoy unobstructed game viewing and great photo opportunities with a pop-up roof hatch.
